

Chevrolets Paints The HHR Black

Article by: Joe Thompson

Chevrolet did not think that their Chevrolet HHR vehicle model would actually become as popular as it is now. In fact, the brand is very much willing to admit that this vehicle has not been one of their top priorities when it comes to marketing and advertisements. But it looks like Chevrolet has now learned about the great possibilities this vehicle model could bring to the company and right now the company is expecting to sell 100,000 units this coming 2007.

And what could be more interesting than bringing out a special edition Chevrolet HHR so as to further bring up the sales of the mentioned vehicle. Everything remains the same with the vehicle – Chevrolet auto parts, engine, exterior, appeal, design, performance – except that for this new Fall Limited Edition, Chevrolet would be painting the Chevrolet HHR black.

The company even further asserts that the 2007 Chevrolet HHR would not be receiving any major changes. After all, despite being a cruiser that holds a retro kind of style, this vehicle still is selling like hotcakes. And with the new black edition of this cruiser, the company hopes to bring in more interested customers. All they need to have in hand is $20,265 and they can own one of these limited edition Chevrolet HHR Fall Limited Edition units.

So what can you expect with this special edition Chevrolet HHR? According to Chevrolet, they would be creating the vehicle using a monochromatic black on black color scheme. This would include not only the exterior body parts but other areas also like the using a black chrome trim on its wheels. The door handles would also be colored black along with the grille. The interior would be colored black.

If you are interested in purchasing such a vehicle, then you may want to start falling in line now to procure an order and be one of the first to sport this limited edition Chevrolet HHR around town. You see, the company stated that they would be creating only 4000 units of this special edition vehicle and that is sure a small amount compared to the huge number of people who would be clamoring to own one.
